The Enquiry-Leak Checklist

For trade and home-service owners. Tick what is true today. Every blank box is a place an enquiry can leak.

A. First reply

- [ ] Every enquiry (call, text, form, DM) lands in one place I check.
- [ ] Someone replies within 15 minutes in business hours, even if only to say when I will call.
- [ ] After hours, the customer gets an automatic reply that sets expectations.

B. Quote

- [ ] I collect the same basic details every time (address, job type, photos, urgency).
- [ ] A quote goes out within one business day of the site visit or call.
- [ ] Quotes are stored where I can find them by customer name in under a minute.

C. Follow-up

- [ ] One named person owns every open quote.
- [ ] An unanswered quote gets a follow-up at day 2 and again at day 7.
- [ ] I know how many quotes I sent last month and how many turned into jobs.

D. Handover

- [ ] The technician gets address, access notes, scope and price in one message.
- [ ] The customer is told the booking time and who is coming, the day before.
- [ ] After the job, the invoice goes out within 48 hours and I ask for a review.

Score: _____ / 12. 10-12: tidy, look for small wins. 6-9: real leaks, fix the first blank box in section A or C. 0-5: you are probably losing jobs weekly.

What one leak costs you

Use your own numbers. Be conservative.

Enquiries per week
Percent that get no reply or a slow reply (your best guess)
Percent of those who would have booked
Average job value ($)
Lost per week = enquiries × slow % × would-book % × job value
Lost per year = weekly × 48

Example: 20 enquiries × 25% slow × 30% would book × $800 = $1,200 a week.

Three fixes to try this week (no software needed)

1. One inbox. Forward the web form, set a missed-call text-back on your mobile, and check one list twice a day.

2. Day 2 and day 7. Put two recurring reminders in your phone for every open quote. Use a two-line message: "Hi [name], any questions on the quote? Happy to adjust."

3. One handover text. Copy the same template for every job: address, access, scope, price, customer phone.

Want a second pair of eyes?

Want to talk it through? Book a free 20-minute call: portfolio.hossainconsulting.com/book

Hemayet Hossain · Hossain Consulting · Sydney · ABN 23 732 235 722 · General guidance only, not legal, tax or financial advice. Hossain Consulting is a new practice; its portfolio work is self-directed and simulated. Unsubscribe or ask me to delete your details any time: hemayet@hossainconsulting.com